For all diseases of the Liver, Stomach and Spleen.

MALARIOUS FEVERS

You are at liberty to use my name in praise of your Regulator as prepared by you, and recommend it to every one as the best preventive for Fever and Ague in the world. I plant in southwestern Georgia, near Albany, Georgia, and must say that it has done more good on my plantation among my pageness than any mediplantation among my negroes than any medi-

CONSTIPATION. TESTIMONY OF THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF GEORGIA.-I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always, when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver—at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it.

HIRAM WARNER,
Chief Justice of Georgia. SICK HEADACHE.

EDITORIAL-We have tested its virtues, personally, and know that for Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Throbbing Headache, it is the best medicine the world eversaw. We have tried forty other remedies before Simmons' Liver Regulator, but none of them gave us more than temporary relief; but the Regulator not only relieved but cured us.—[Editor Telegraph and Messenger, Maport of what he said :-

Beecher on Hard Times. Rev. Henry Ward Beecher lectured in Phila delphia last Monday night on Hard Times. The Record of that city gives the following re-

"The period from 1873 to 1874 will long be remembered," opened Mr. Beecher, "as the 'dark days,' and we have often had these dark days and they have not been confined to us, but they have reached across the sea. are waiting, hoping for something to tide them over. What is the matter? What has happened? A great many reasons have been given; some have assigned it to the tariff as a cause of the depression, and others think it lies in the want of confidence—that if men only had confidence in each other everything would go on right. It does not occur to people to inquire why there is a want of confidence. These depressions are sleeps in the commercial world which result from the habit of giving credit.' The speaker regarded the credit system as a great benefit. He inquired if "men cannot pay, must they stand still until they can?" You must give him an opportunity to work his way out of difficulties, and to give men credit gives them a chance to begin at once to help themselves. Where business goes on a cash basis money goes for everything and man for nothing. [Applause.] The man who has got industry, integrity, honesty and fidelity has capital which compels him to guard his manhood and reputation, and therefore promotes the morals of society. The system of credit has dangers, it is true; but if it had dangers a thousand fold it would still be beneficial. We are in the bud of a great and prosperous future; we are through with the winter and are in the spring of a brighter era. The credit system will be renewed, and it will be renewed on a careful basis, Men will be thoroughly inspected, and none but the "gilt edge" will be received. Mr. Beecher said:—"It is not until men are tried that they are proved honest.' Some men there are whom you can strip of everything as the tree is stripped by the blasts of winter, leaf by leaf, until nothing is left, and will not sacrifice their integrity, but these men do not walk in battalions. [Laughter and ap-plause.] Men should confine them-elves within the limits of their own capacities, and the fact that one is competent to worthily fill a minor position does not argue that he is equally capable for the duties of a larger one, and because men can pay with a small credit it does not follow that they can sustain a large one. Men say it is the want of confidence that produces revulsions, "hut," said Mr. Beecher, "I say it's the want of cash." Laughter and applause.

The speaker affirmed as one great cause of depression the immense amount of money invested in railroads, and said there was $2,100,-000,000 sunk in this dark guif. "Stocks," said he, "were the piles driven down by engineers to place the first mortgage boods upon [laughter,] and the second merigage bonds were then built on the first, and the third on the second [laughter;] so, of course, the stock was run out of sight." [Great laughter.] After showing how many people were vicimized in these bond swindles-the mechnic, the farmer and the preacher [here Mr. Beecher touched his own breast, to the great amusement of the audience | the ruin caused was husted out and the effects illustrated. "But the country is now nearly over the evil effects, and would speedily realize the good; and the United States-the united country-will bound beneath the spur of renewed activity. In an elequent peroration Mr. Beecher referred to the regenerated Union, with no State turning on a bayonet as its pivot. "With a country thus united we must surely feel the good effects. What the North needs the South needs; we have got over fighting, and the sun of prosperity will soon burst forth from north to south and from east to west in brightest splendor." A PARISIAN DIAMOND STORY .- A Frenchman brought to a well-known Parisian jeweler a diamond necklace which was recognized as having been one of his wife's wedding presents. The Frenchman had with him its counterpart in paste, and he proposed to sell the genuine necklace to the jeweler for 50,000 francs, and let his wife think she still had the real diamonds. The jeweler asked for a few hours time. He then called on the wife's grandmother, who gave him the 50,000 francs for the husband. The money and the necklace were handed to the husband, who believed he was receiving the paste diamonds. "That is well," said the grandmother; "her husband will think the diamonds are false, and will never try to sell them again." A few months passed, and the wife, embarrassed by a huge dressmaker's bill, brought the necklace to the same jeweler to sell. She was, of course, ignorant of her husband's previous action. "How will you explain to your husband the disappearance of the diamonds?" she was asked. "By substituting an imitation necklace,,' she answered. "I will arrange that for you," said the jeweler, who hastened again to the grandmother, explained the situation, and received 50 000 france for no further effort to sell them. CALLSI STRADDLESII $50, $100, $200, $450. LEXANDER FROTHINGHAM & CO., 825, A Bankers and Brokers, No. 12 Wall street, New York, make for customers investments in Cotton and Stock Privileges, in amounts to suit,
